DOING HIS DUTY BY HER

THE FLIGHT OF FALSE ONES ENDS IN MARRIAGE.

Thrift, Capture, a Happy Home Married,
Lifelong, Wedded, All in six weeks.
His Lady's Husband Secures His Freedom—A Life in the West.

New York, Nov. 25.—The denouement of the elopement of Mrs. Allen Brannell with her husband's friend, Clason Graham, which created such a flutter in Flushing, N.Y., of which both were prominent members, six weeks ago, was furnished in the published announcement of the marriage of the eloping couple. Graham, who was a broker doing business on the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum exchange, on Thursday, October 1, received from the oil broker firm of Spencer, Trask & Co., a number of certificates to sell.

Graham lived with his father, who is one of the oldest and most respected residents of Flushing, and in the morning of his elopement, he was an active promoter of the interests of both Sunday school and church, regular in habits and a devoted Sunday school leader, and a member of the congregation of the St. George Episcopal church in Flushing, which also numbered Mrs. Brannell in its list.

Graham is also said to be a relation of Mr. Trask's wife, so that the day passed without report, and the firm thought nothing of it. Not having received an accounting from Graham upon the 3rd of October, Spencer, Trask & Co., felt their confidence in the young man was gone, and inquired at the clearing department of the exchange elicited the fact that the certificates had been sold in Graham's name, and he was in the city, and a check for $30,000 to his order given in settlement. Hurrying to the Park bank it was learned that the check had been presented by Graham, who received the money. Pinkerton's detective agency was called into the council and an inquiry was set on foot.

It was learned that Graham had that day boarded a train at the Grand Central depot on the way to Canada, and Mrs. Brannell, who had left her husband's home in Flushing ostensibly to visit her father in his city, had accompanied him. H. U. Julian, a Pinkerton detective, was soon following along in the wake of the fugitives and caught up with them in Springfield, Mass., where he learned that they were waiting the morning train for Montreal. Julian traced them to the Massillon hotel, where they registered as Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jordan, of Pittsburg. When Graham approached the desk in the morning to settle his bill the detective accosted him. He then acknowledged his identity and surrendered the money, at the same time agreeing to return with the officer to New York. When Mrs. Brannell learned of this she was so shocked and shocked him severely to back for his weakness and urged him to continue their journey, finally promising that she would accompany the officer, as he had promised. Arriving at a deadlock so far as bringing him to this city was concerned, the detective sent the officer to New York to procure a warrant for Graham's arrest. Mrs. Brannell meantime retaining another detective to see that Graham was not carried back by force.

Both lawyers waited upon Justice Campbell, one to plead for and the other against the issuance of the warrant. The justice decided that the statutes would not allow him to authorize the arrest. The lawyers looked upon the justice as a humbug, and continuing their argument at the law table, where they were reinforced by Julian, who, having Graham to be defended by a local attorney and telegraphing the attorneys of Spencer, Trask & Co., in this city, hurried off to reinforce his representative.

The judge finally signed the desired document and the detective returned to secure his man. Upon reaching the hotel Graham could not be found, and he quietly walked out of the office, the policeman having no authority to detain him, and disappeared. Mrs. Brannell had meantime waited quietly in the hotel.

The night train brought J. K. Brannell, brother of the abandoned husband, who obtained an interview with the justice, was induced by her to leave the city with him. Mr. Nicholas, representing Spencer, Trask & Co., was a passenger on the same train, and at once stopped all criminal proceedings against Graham, declaring that the firm was entirely satisfied at having recovered their money. Graham was discovered after a short search, and left for New Haven in company with Mr. Nicholas.

The story of the elopement was received by the friends of both parties in this city and Flushing. Mrs. Brannell's real name was Alice Macdonald, and she is the daughter of Mr. P. C. Macdonald, a gentleman well known in Wall and New Streets. After her marriage to Mr. Arthur Brannell, of the firm of Spaulding & Harris, a young brother of prominent character, who lived on Broadway, Flushing, became a favorite writing place for the best people of the place.

After the elopement the husband closed the house, removing with his little son to the residence of his father, and took immediate steps to procure a divorce. No defense being made, the divorce was granted. As soon as the decree was issued Graham and Mrs. Brannell completed their arrangements for moving in a measure for their escape. Mrs. Brannell had taken refuge at her father's home in New York, and returned from there, and Graham, it is said, waited in seclusion in New Jersey. The preliminaries were arranged and they were soon married, the Rev. Dr. Parry performing the ceremony. The couple immediately left for the west, where, it is stated, they will inaugurate their home.

IN THE NORTHWEST.

An Unhappy Among the Followers of

Riel Only a Matter of Time.
BRANWICK, Dec. 25.—An Half-Breed hunter arrived from the Canadian Northwest and reports that an extremely warlike spirit exists among his countrymen in the Northwest Territory. No one can tell the news of Riel's execution reach the Indians and Half-Breed French than a movement was inaugurated to secure aid from an English Head of State to one camp on the edge of Lord McDougal was hanged before the enraged crowd, who killed it with bullets, and the whole with knives and gathering the fragments, burned them to ash.

The business now here says he does not believe that there will be any trouble during the winter months, but thinks the pent-up vengeance of the followers of Riel will break out in the spring and cresthead here among the frontier settlers who are considered seriously. He states that the great evil of the Half-Breeds in the execution of their plans is a leader to take the place of Riel, and many of them pray for the return of Gabriel Dumont, who exhibited so much bravery and pluck during the late fighting, but left after the surrender of Riel, and is now in Montana.

The Boy Traveller.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—McDougal, the runaway boy from Chicago, who was arrested here last week or so, and placed in the Home of the Boys and Girls Aid Society, has again escaped. His flight is known as the young American Traveller. He ran away from the home, and was not heard from again until he was brought into this country last week. He was found by a man on San Pablo avenue. Sheriff Hale received an information from the aid society that the boy was not wanted at the home. When he was brought here he was trying to steal his way on board of a China steamer. The authorities of Alameda county, who were notified of his escape, are now looking for him, and want to take him into custody, and then want to do with him.

A Half-Breed's Value.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 25.—A correspondent of the Pioneer Press, a frontier, Northwest territory, sends a surprising story. It is that a half-breed, who is a follower of Riel, is hanging in the north of the Saskatchewan on Wednesday in company with a person answering the description of Gabriel Dumont, and that a city of the north of the Saskatchewan is now in a state of alarm. It is said that a man who paid the penalty on November 1, was a half-breed, and was in the person of one of the condemned prisoners at the Regina jail.

Among the subscriptions received was one of $25 from Charles F. Kollege & Company, Chicago, making $100,000. A singing society in San Antonio has remitted $100,000. Cutting, N. ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—Judge Wallace, in the United States circuit court, granted an unconditional preliminary injunction in favor of Gilis P. ## WASHINGTON BUDGET.

THE SILVER EXTREMISTS PRESSING FOR A BOND CALL.

Details of Proposed Changes in the Rules of the House—Various Bills and Committees—Meeting Out and Making Room—National News Notes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A considerable force of silver extremists are strongly and persistently urging the president and secretary of the treasury to call bonds and redeem them with the bond dollars which have accumulated in the treasury. They are quickly excited by influential Wall street speculators, who, for their own purposes, would like to see this done.

It can be confidently said that this pressure is of no avail. There will be no call of bonds until congress has met and the administration will wait for the instructions of congress before paying the debt in silver. If the silver extremists want their policy carried out they will have to get congress to order it. A bill ordering the president to use the seventy-five millions of bonded dollars of the treasury by the government to pay off the bonds would cause an interesting debate in congress. Among the changes in the rules of the house which are proposed are to abolish the former morning hour in such a way that bills reported may have immediate consideration. It is proposed also to abolish the present rule requiring unanimous consent to take up a bill, or a two-thirds vote in other cases. What will be done to open the door to debate by limiting the duration of the previous question is uncertain.

As to the proposed distribution of appropriations, it is understood that the silver men and positive bills to separate committees, leaving the remainder of the appropriations bills, to the appropriation committee as a whole. But Mr. Springer, who is paying attention to this matter, hopes to persuade the house to consolidate several appropriations bills, and four new committees will be created. The banking and currency and the coinage, weights and measures committee. It is proposed to consolidate into one, to be called the currency committee. Two special committees are to be established, and one—a committee on the executive branch, carrying on with the consideration of the election of president and vice president, the counting of the electoral votes, the succession to the presidential office, the composition of federal officers and the condition of the civil service. The two committees on railroad reform and the condition of the roads are to be consolidated. The eight standing committees on expenditures in the executive department are to be consolidated into one, to be called the committee on the expenditure. The military committee is to report the army and the military academy bills, the private roads and the navy bills, the academy bills, and the postoffice committee is to be charged with the post office bills.

This is the present plan. It remains to be seen what the house will think of it. But the consolidation of committees is undoubtedly necessary. The multiplication of committees has become a serious and serious obstruction to necessary business. Many of the present committees were created mainly to give to their chairman a private room and a clerk, and they are so numerous that the Capitol can no longer hold them all. Under Mr. Springer's plan twenty-five committees are to be created, and the public business is facilitated thereby.

The Vidette, the organ of the Mexican veterans, says that supporters of the Mexican war may now safely forward their applications for service pension according to the terms transmitted by the secretary of the Mexican Veterans' National association. This action, it is said, will expedite the settlement of their claims when the service pension bill is enacted into law, and is expected that this will take place during the approaching session of congress.

When the act of March 1878, for the benefit of the veterans of 1813 was passed a provision was incorporated in the bill making retroactive of the application for the pension office, and there were thirteen thousand cases which had been filed in anticipation of the passage of that act. Arrangements have been made for the provision making such applications valid.

FALSE REPORTS.

The Millers' Association, of Minneapolis.

After a Chicago Paper.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 25.—The Millers' association met to consider the charges made from time to time in the news and editorial columns of the Chicago Tribune that the association had conspired to break the wheat market in Chicago. The various charges made by the paper were carefully considered, and it was finally resolved to demand once, by telegraph, of the Tribune the sources of information and an editorial explanation.

It was decided if full reparation is not made to begin suit against the Tribune for damages. The Millers claim that the Tribune's assertions are gained by a clique of Chicago operators who had themselves loaded with high priced wheat, and who have had agents throughout the northwest for six weeks past manufacturing news to help the price in its manipulations.

Some millers claim to have direct proof of the falsification of the elevator report of the amount stored at different points in Minnesota and Dakota; also of receipts and shipments at points not covered by the press.

Whitney in Wisconsin.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 25.—Mary Howell, of the district of Columbia, has been arrested by a neighbor for attempting to kill her by arsenic, and the district attorney has been told for trial. The complaint claims in all sincerity that the woman is a wife and attributes the big cholera prevailing in that vicinity to her animosity. Two years ago she was arrested in her forward company, joining county. The people thought that their bad crops and diseases among the cattle were caused by her animosity, and they attempted her life.

Mrs. Ollie Smith's Story

The latest news in regard to the alleged elopement of Mrs. Ollie Smith, from her home at Covington, La., Friday, places the matter before the public in an entirely different light. Mrs. Smith has been heard from on the subject, and it now appears that she never eloped at all, but was compelled to leave her home in order to escape from a drunken husband. The Enquirer of the 24th instant, in alluding to the affair, says: "The other side" of the Smith-Snyder story is calculated to take a very large amount of sympathy from the husband and transfer it to his wife. She gave in a quiet, womanly way with occasional pauses during which her grief found vent in tears. "It is true," she said, "that my husband is prostrated. But it is from a debauch. He was on the border of delirium tremens. When sober there is not a kinder man in the world. I had to leave the house or lose my life. There is not a malice or treason in him that is not shattered. He would break anything and everything when he was the way I speak. Time again he has taken a revolver to my terror. This man Snyder I have not seen for I don't know how long. I want you to say that I have been in Covington all the time, stopping at the house of a lady friend. I have not been on this side of the river before for a long time. When I left the house Friday I had no thought of eloping. I had no idea of separating from my husband longer than his debauch lasted. If I had expected to remain away from my house I should certainly have taken some clothing with me other than that I am now wearing. I did not even take a sachel with me."

The following despatch from Knoxville, Tenn., appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Cincinnati Enquirer: "J. G. Litterton, formerly with a flouring mill at Mayville, Ky., made a futile attempt to commit suicide here today by taking morphine. He left a note at his boarding house to have his body sent to his father at Eldorado Springs, Mo. Litterton has a family at Mayville, and says he will yet kill his father. Loss of employment is the cause of his madness."

Since the above appeared we have been informed that the gentleman referred to in the above despatch is Mr. Joseph Litterton, whose family resides in the Fifth Ward. He formerly held a position as traveling salesman under Messrs. Robinson & Co., proprietors of the Mayville Flour Mills.

All information can be had of M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., on application.

The Baptist Meeting.

The Baptist Church was filled last night, and the congregation listened attentively as Brother Hale preached upon "The Humiliation of Christ." Chairs have been secured and seats will be provided for all who come. Everybody is invited. The afternoon service is especially interesting. Services promptly at 3 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Thanksgiving Sermon.

As Thursday, the 26th, is set apart by the church and the civil authority as a day of "Prayer and Thanksgiving to Almighty God, for the fruits of the earth, and all the other blessings of His merciful providence," an appropriate service and sermon will be presented in the Church of the Nativity at 10:30 a. m. There will also be the usual "Harvest Home" decorations. The public is invited to unite with the congregation in this service.

The City Bee and Times this week says: "Our prospective railroad seems to be brightening, and we can safely announce that in less than one year the cars will be running into Ripley. We will give full particulars within the next week or two."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas J. Rogers will take Thanksgiving dinner in Frankfort. Whope he will have a capital time.

Messrs. James W. Staton and S. W. Bradford prominent citizens of Brookville were town this morning.

Mr. W. L. Stamper, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stewart, Mr. W. C. Halbert, Miss Fannie Bates, Mr. Joseph A. Sparks, Miss Lillie Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Parker, Mr. Sam. J. Pugh, and Messrs. A. P. Darrow, H. A. Brunning and T. B. Bullock, all of Vancuebar, came down Tuesday on the Frankfort and attended the annual banquet given by the Knights of this city last evening.

We have received from the Travelers Insurance Company, of Hartford, a copy of their new engraving, "Representative Parian Journals and Portraits." It is an interesting and well executed picture, showing fifteen of the leading newspapers of the French capital, with the portrait of the editor photographed as it were upon each. The Travelers has a handsome way of issuing really good engravings, advertising itself, of course, in an unobtrusive way, but at the same time contributing in no small degree to the common stock of popular information. As the latest accident company in the world, the Travelers can afford this class of broad advertising, which creates a favorable personal feeling toward itself wherever its attractive art work penetrates. Accident tickets in the above company, insuring $3,000 in case of death from accidental causes, and $15 a week in case of disability, can still be procured of M. F. Marsh, this city.

"A sawdude has come to town." If you don't believe it, just stop in at Louis Zech's Red Corner Clothing House and be convinced. Although this new importation is run by clock work, it can't be beat by any of the genuine live specimens in this city. It wears the best clothes, smokes the best cigarettes, and is the most perfect specimen of gold spectacles. It has the genuine stork, but it's awfully stuck up—on a show case. Go see for yourself.

Where I have used Tangleline in cases of neuritis it has worked like a charm. So far R. W. BRADY, M. D., Honesdale, Pa.

A Vexed Question Settled.

Doctors and lawyers have wrangled over the inwardness of kleptomaniacs, but from today the law is settled. To take things just because they can't help it. The doctors have it—not kleptomaniacs, but the glory of settling the vexed question.

A microbe is at the bottom of most things these days, and a learned Italian professor has discovered the bacteria of kleptomaniacs. He cultivates it in beet or cabbage juice, and when full grown it assumes a hooked shape, like an interlocking puzzle. He has taken the bacteria to which it gives rise, and its distinctive name—the hooked cocci. Injected into cats, these animals steal to neighboring houses and kleptomaniacs, and so on. Some of the bacteria were carefully dropped upon the professor's floor, and the next morning his pocket book, watch and office key were missing. A Mayville hog, hitherto above suspicion, suddenly turned thief, and an examination being made it was found full of hooked cocci.

The learned professor is reported as manning a cocktail in burgundy with a view to the cultivation and development of the delirium tremens bacillus, and some interesting results are expected.
